HORSEMANSHIP

Newsletters, columnists and jokesmiths have been furnished with another morsel within the past few days which they consider adequate for several long paragraphs. The Prince of Wales has again tumbled off a horse.

How amusing these articles must appear to those who know anything about riding. When we first started gathering the news for the public an old editor who had grown gray and bent in giving the public real news, warned us that one of the first rules of the game was not to try to write about anything we did not understand, until we consulted an expert on the subject.

We might suggest that some of those who think they have been doing the public a great service in their hair raising stories or quips about the Prince of Wales latest fall consult some horseman or even a groom will do. Yes, some illiterate negro groom who has never heard of the Prince of Wales, can inform them in a short time that falling off a spirited horse is not the exceptional thing. The exceptional thing is the strength of character that after once having been thrown from a horse to dust off and mount again. It is true the Prince of Wales probably rides higher strung horses than the average man, but in spite of that, we do not believe that his falls will run as high as the average horseman's.

Of course practically any one can sit up on an old plug that can't move faster than a slow canter, but we'll wager that not many of those who delight in "panning" the Prince for his horselessness could mount much less ride some of the horses from which he has been thrown.

We are not trying to defend the Prince of Wales as the future king of England, or as an individual, but as a horseman and a game sport. If England and America too had more men of the type that would be game to get on a horse after being pitched off, instead of using up their energy in chasing poor, defenseless golf ball and dancing the Charleston, this would be a much better country to live in and criminal lawyers would not be working overtime, trying to save youths under 21 from the gallows.

REALTORS PLAN FOR BIG CROWD AT RECEPTION OF STATE CHIEF

General Public Has Been Invited to Attend Luncheon Meet for Culver

Richmond's importance in the state is again stressed by arrangements completed by the local Realtors to have President Harry Culver of the California Real Estate Association include this city in his tour of the state.

Accompanying Culver will be a number of other state officers as well as a national officer of the Realtors and the impression made at the Richmond meeting will in a large measure, be the message which these visitors will carry to all parts of the state and nation.

Richmond cannot afford to fail and it behooves the real estate men and business men to get together and give those men the best reception which they have had since they started on their tour of the state.

State Real Estate Commissioner J. R. Gabert, William E. Herren, director of the National Association of Real Estate Boards extension division and Secretary Glenn D. Williams of the California Real Estate Association, will be included in the party.

All of these men will have a message to not alone for the real estate men of Richmond, but all of the local business men as well. A program well worth while has been arranged for the luncheon meeting, which is to be held at Fairmeade clubhouse on Wednesday noon. The dining room will be appropriately decorated for the occasion.

During the talks which Culver has been delivering on this tour, he has stressed the importance of the real estate man to the make-up of a town, especially those of the size and position of Richmond. He has pointed out in his talks that the real estate men through their operations can either make or break a town. They either bring into the town new citizens with capital to invest or they handle their business in such a way that the city is shunned by capital and people looking for new homes.

Fortunately according to Culver, the Real Estate Boards and state regulations, which have been brought about by these same boards, have made things unhealthy for the shyster real estate dealer and the type which is now permitted to do business, is a boon to the community where they operate.

"I heartily agree with Culver in his statements regarding the ability of real estate men to take a prominent part in the building of a city," E. B. Bull, president of the Contra Costa Board of Realtors stated yesterday, while discussing the luncheon next week.

"I also believe that every business man in the city should be present at that luncheon on Wednesday, so that he can better understand just what an organization of this kind means in the building up of a city and what the Contra Costa Real Estate Board can do to help Richmond and the entire county," Bull continued.

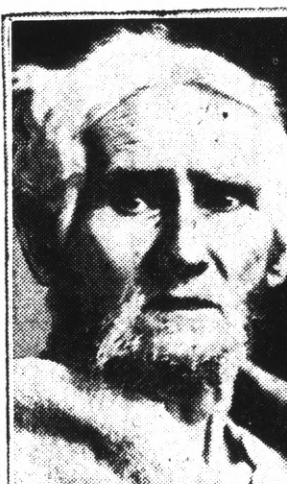

"That is why we have thrown this meeting open so that all men of this city and women as well, may appreciate the position that the progressive realtor has in the make-up of a modern city. The doors will be wide open for all those who wish to avail themselves of this opportunity."

Reservations for the dinner should be made at once and can be made with A. L. Paulsen, secretary of the organization, J. B. Corrie of the Schapiro company or any member of the County Realtors organization in the city.

FERGUSON CASE DUPLICATED BY PIEDMONT FIND

BERKELEY, Feb. 4.—A human jaw-bone and a section of pelvis bone, were found by Mrs. Georgia McClure, 318 Jerome avenue, Piedmont, in her chrysanthemum garden, when Mrs. McClure troweling in the garden, came upon the bones. She immediately notified the police who sent Detective Fred Heere of the Piedmont Police department to investigate the case. He carefully searched the vicinity, the pelvis bone was found in a bush.

The bones were then taken to E. O. Heinrich, Berkeley criminologist, who declared the bones to be of human origin. Marks on the bones show that a dog carried them to the place where they were found. The jaw bone was said to be part of the head of a white woman about 50 years old, and short in stature. Dental work was also found in it and the teeth were still intact.

A check up the police files will probably locate the necessary relatives who may be able to direct the investigation to a clue. Also dental records may clear the mystery.

In another statement Mrs. McClure said that the pelvis bone was not in the bush when she was working at the same spot Wednesday. It is said to be possible that the recent rains have exposed it. She was working there and when Detective Heere found it, the hospital are being checked for possible anatomical specimens that have been lost.

Police opinion is that the Bessie Patterson case, a rape on his practice in the same manner. That case started with the finding of a piece of scalp in a tule marsh near El Cerrito and continued with the finding of parts of the body in other places. The police are in the other case will continue to hunt for clues.

Local Lions to Attend Meeting Of Pittsburg Den

The Richmond Lions club is making elaborate preparations for the celebration of charter night of the Pittsburg organization on February 15. Complete plans have not yet been made, but it was announced last night by Art Paris, secretary of the Richmond club, that about 10 clubs from around the East Bay will also participate in the celebration. About thirty-five members from here are planning to attend. Paris stated that probably some of the clubs will have to receive allotments for the number of members who are planning to attend, as the facilities of the Pittsburg clubrooms will not take care of a large delegation.

The program will consist of selections by the Lion's club quartette, a short address by Wilbur Pierce, president of the local club, and other interesting numbers.

New Court Action May Save State Tax Payers Approximately Eleven Million

BEST CASE IS FILED

Former Ruling Did Not Allow Man and Wife to File Individual Income Returns

(By Universal Service)
SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 4.—New court action on the California community property law, which may save the taxpayers approximately $11,000,000 in 1926 Federal income tax payments and which may ultimately result in refund of more than one hundred million dollars, was brought before the Supreme court late today.

Moss Ida May Adams, Los Angeles attorney, appeared before the court in the friendly suit of Ernest A. Stewart, against Frances Lee Stewart, his wife of Los Angeles in a test suit of the community property law.

A month ago the U. S. Supreme court ruled that the community property law did entitle a man and wife to file separate income tax returns. The court decreed that the wife has interest in community property, "was expected, and not present as invalid" Mrs. Stewart seeks a reversal of this decision. She already has secured a favorable verdict in Los Angeles, where the superior court decided that the wife's interest is "real" and not "expectant." Should the State Supreme court affirm the decision of the superior court, husband and wife will be allowed to file separate tax returns.

The Supreme Court will meet in Los Angeles, March 19, six days before the income tax returns must be filed to hear the case.

Train Service to North Held Up By Bad Land Slides

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 4.—Traffic between San Francisco and Portland on the Southern Pacific was at a standstill late today, as a result of a washout between Reuben and Bardeen, about 250 miles south of Portland, railroad officials announced here this evening.

Seventy feet of track were washed out and 30 feet of a bridge were carried away as the result of a terrific downpour of rain the last few days, it was said. Crews have been rushed to the scene, and the line is expected to be opened tomorrow morning, officials declared.

The tieup is one of the most complete in the history, it being impossible to transfer either passengers or baggage around the obstructed section.

Tactics Used to Increase Church Rolls Attacked

BERKELEY, Feb. 4.—The tactics of religious denominations to secure wealthy and socially prominent people as members of their churches, has been denounced as "vulgar and petty," by Bishop William F. McDowell, in a lecture which he delivered at the Sixth Annual Interdenominational Pastoral Conference, now going on under the auspices of the Pacific School of Religion.

"All the petty motives for evangelism, where churches fight each other to create huge membership rolls, to secure members of high social standing, and to save souls for vulgar commercial or patriotic motives, break down sooner or later," declared Bishop McDowell.

Decrying the emphasis laid upon doctrine by the ministry, Bishop McDowell declared: "Perhaps freed-making ought to be evangelized. There is too much big ability now being used in the saving of doctrine of one brand or another, and not nearly enough effort is being made to use the truth of Christ to set men free."

DOUBLE ORDER OF MILK GIVEN TO CONSUMERS

Rival Firms Claim Right To Deliver Milk On Routes

RESTRAINING ORDER FILED

Both Say That Double Delivery Of Milk Will Be Given Again Today

Richmond housewives benefited yesterday morning and will benefit again this morning if threats of a milk war which started here Wednesday night are carried out. Everybody who is a patron of the Purdy Creamery got a double dose of milk this morning according to Captain D. Horner, attorney for the Purdy Creamery. Another double dose will be administered this morning. And this is the result of a restraining order which was granted yesterday to the San Pablo Milk Producers by Judge H. V. Alvarado returnable before Judge A. B. McKenzie on Monday afternoon.

First indications of the trouble loomed Wednesday night when the milk which had in the past been delivered to Costa of the Purdy Creamery Company was delivered to A. M. Luiz and John Azevedo of the San Pablo Milk Producers, T.H. DeLap, attorney for the latter firm states that the firm holds a bill of sale from Costa whereby they purchased his routes and secured the services of the drivers of the Purdy Creamery.

Costa however through Attorney Horner denies this and when he failed to get his delivery of milk last Wednesday night from the Matos dairy in Marin county he purchased enough milk for his business from the Eagle Creamery and secured the services of the Eagle Creamery drivers in delivering the milk to his former patrons. The San Pablo Milk Producers, under the impression that they were in possession of the routes, according to DeLap, sent the former drivers of Costa over the routes only to find that the Eagle wagons had already made the deliveries.

The San Pablo firm through DeLap then filed the restraining order which prevents the Eagle Creamery from making deliveries on the routes but does in no way prevent Costa from making the deliveries himself.

Just what the outcome of the entire affair will be, lawyers representing the opposing forces were unable to predict last night, but housewives who reported the double delivery of milk yesterday morning did not seem to be concerned in the least.

The application was held over by the council at the January meeting, pending a report from Police Chief Charles Scudero. Police reported Fernandez had been charged with gambling several times last year.

ADVISORY OPINIONS

One reservation to the resolution putting the United States in the World Court is that which provides that the United States will not be bound by any advisory opinions handed down by the court. But the matter deserves a little further investigation.

If the United States is not to be bound by advisory opinions, why should the United States representative on the World Court take part in the preparing and handing down of advisory opinions? The question is more important than appears on the surface.

The League Court recently rendered an opinion on the Mosul question. This difference of opinion, as everyone knows, arose between Turkey and Great Britain over a piece of territory which contains some of the most valuable oil deposits in the world. As has been their custom, the league and the court held in favor of the stronger power, which in this case happens to be Great Britain. Turkey has not as yet contested the decision by a resort to arms, but practically every European diplomat believes that eventually there will be war over Mosul, and that Turkey is only waiting for the opportunity to strike.

Now if war comes over Mosul will the nations adhering to the league and the court provide money and troops to fight for the court? Here is where the matter is of interest to us.

If we were in the court, and our representative were helping to render advisory opinions—even if we refused to be bound by them ourselves—and then if war grew out of one of these advisory opinions, could not the league and the league court with some show of justice declare that we ought to help fight for the enforcement of the decision because our representative on the court has helped to render the opinion? And would not a powerful faction in the United States agree? Here is something that is at least worth some thought.

RETAIL BUSINESS BETTER

That the country is in better shape financially than it was a year ago is indicated by the reports just made by the Federal Reserve Board to the effect that Christmas shopping during the recent holiday season was ahead of that of 1924 in all parts of the country. To be more exact, Christmas sales by the retail stores were on the average of 7.2 per cent greater than a year ago. The greatest increases were in the New York, Chicago and Atlanta districts with the smallest in the Minneapolis and Kansas City districts. But there was a general increase everywhere.

The percentage of increases reported by the Federal Reserve districts were as follows:

Chicago, 15.3; Atlanta, 11.5; New York, 9.5; Philadelphia, 7.7; Dallas, 6; San Francisco, 5.6; Cleveland, 5.5; St. Louis, 5.3; Richmond, 4.9; Boston, 4.8; Kansas City, 1.7; Minneapolis, 4.9; Sales of mail-order houses in December, 1925, which represent Christmas shopping particularly for the agricultural districts, were 15.1 per cent larger than in December 1924, and sales at 5 and 10 cent chain stores were 16.2 per cent larger than in 1924.

General business conditions were also generally better at the close of the year, according to the report. Increases were noted in the production of pig iron and steel which always serves as a barometer of general business conditions.

The board general rule is that a man is about as big as the things that make him bad.—Detroit News.

Those Queer Old Blue Laws

You have probably, at some time or other, heard people talk about the "Blue Laws." Perhaps you have read something of them. And perhaps, as you have shaken your head over their intolerance and restrictions, you have wondered a little about them.

Well, almost three hundred years ago there came to Boston a man whose name was John Davenport. Over in England, the country from which he came, he had become an enemy of a very powerful English bishop.

Davenport was a man of serious mind and of strong conscience. He wanted to form a very strict society of Puritans. We wished them to be very exemplary in their behavior and very intolerant of any sort of evil or sin.

This stern young man settled in the Connecticut colony and some of his plans were put into practice. For in his colony only church members were allowed to vote. Government was on a very strict moral basis. The colony became the most Puritanical of any.

I have been said that in this colony and this time were enacted the famous "Blue Laws of Connecticut." But later, historians tell us that this was not true. We are told now that this story was invented a hundred years later by a man who wanted to ridicule the Puritans. He could think of no better way of doing it than by making up a list of perfectly silly laws, so strict that they were positively funny.

Here are just a few of them, so you may see how utterly ridiculous they were:

Parents were forbidden to kiss their children on Sunday.

Women were forbidden to make mince pies.

Musical instruments other than the drum, trumpet or Jew's harp must not be played.

Sunday would indeed have been a hard day to live through had all of these laws been true.

This is an unusually clever way to develop a frock of dove color flat crepe. The back hangs in straight lines, but the front features a mannish vestee, a shirred front and a smart version of the bolero. There are gathers at the shoulders, on either side of the front, the back being extended forward to form a yoke effect. This model is also suited to development in the satin crepes. The GOLDEN COCOON

RUTH CROSS

"The Golden Cocoon" with Helene Chadwick is a picturization of this novel by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS.
Molly is of the breed of "chiffless Shannons," a Texas family that has prospered much too rapidly, but, unlike the others, she has temper, individuality and individuality. Her parents are proud and the advantages she enjoys are few, yet she lends her class at school and devours every book on which she can lay her hands. She pities her mother and "hates men, hates marrying, hates children."

She had no standards for distinguishing between a real play and a twenty-third stock. But even her dazed, eager-to-be-deluded eyes could not overlook the fact that the sixteen-year-old heroine of the piece was more like to be sixty under her red and white—and that the mop of yellow curls had not originally grown where it now resided. But that took little from her delicious joy.

A story made throbbing flesh and blood before her very eyes! It was beyond her wildest dreams. She had not read "Hamlet" and "Othello" and "She Stoops to Conquer" at all. New and dizzy realms opened before her. After that night a destiny, her own stories were transposed. The wall opposite her bed in the old loan-to-be became the rear dimension for a stage set out with such reckless magnificence as even the nabobs in the profession can scarce afford. Thick folds of somber velvet—these she instinctively preferred to the tawdry painted canvas—parted with slow and stately dignity. The footlights blazed from the cold of midwinter moon, and—the play was on!

With all this teeming, intense life going on inside her, Molly had small cause to repine at the hard-

They were at the rickety little back gate now. The children, rampant for supper, had gone on into the house. Jo was turning away gloomy and dejected, when he shoved his hand suddenly into his left breast pocket and brought out a crumpled envelope. "I've pretty much forgot," he said. "I was over to the store an' Ollie Sears asked me to fetch you this—"

Molly leaned across the gate which whined reproachfully on its single hinge, and took the letter. She raised it to her eyes, straining to make out the typewritten characters. Her fingers trembled. For a space her heart ceased to beat. Thus simply and casually she do the "furious events" of life come to pass.

"Miss Molly Shannon, Laws Chapel, Texas"—so the address read. And in the upper left-hand corner were the words, "Office o-stills of her lot. What was cotton-picking? What was scrubbing and scrubbing? What was disorderly, crowded house—what was Laws' Chapel, when she had all this violent, secret happiness, sharpening at times to ecstasy that hurt? There were moments when she was so grateful for being and being herself that hot tears gushed up into her eyes and she lost all sense of time or space.

As that outward shell of herself which others received, Molly plodded along now between the cotton rows, she was no longer conscious of the load at her shoulder. Her ears were stopped to the clamor of youthful noises behind her. She had darted off to where he sunset was letting down golden zales above the gray-black of the prairie. This was the hour of refreshment after the long heat and toil of the day, one of the hours when she belonged most wholly to herself—a passionate and fundamental need.

CHAPTER III.
"Molly!"

An eager voice behind her, a heavy-shod, masculine foot falling into step, shattered the fragile bubble of her mood, put to flight all the momentary raptures. The intruder, a stranger, shy-eyed country boy, some five years her senior, quailed visibly before her inhospitable glance. Jo Blackburn was notoriously the most bashful boy in North Texas; yet he had courted Molly doggedly since she was seven. "We got through weighin' up earlier 'n usual over our way, an' I thought maybe you'd let me carry your sack in to the wagon." His honest red face grew redder at a chorus of barely suppressed snickers behind him.

Molly shook her head and tramped on stolidly with the cotton sack dragging her down like a top-heavy crop on a stately arching pear tree. Luckily, poor Jo could not see the malicious gleam in her cornflower-blue eyes. It is the fate of good and simple men to be thus flouted by women who succumb at a glance, a touch, to men less scrupulous and worthy.

Her mother, an indescribably pathetic, misshapen figure in a faded calico wrapper, stood over the sizzling hot cook stove. There was a baby on her hip, another fretting at her skirts. Occasionally she put up her elbow with a worn, harassed gesture to push back the straggling waves of damp brown hair. Maggie Shannon had been a very pretty girl when she was Maggie Easton. There were traces of that prettiness still, faint flashes, little gallant sallies forth through the overcast of worry any fatigue and pain.

PROFESSOR NOODLE

Dear Professor:
"I was my hubby's delight to stay home every night, but the boys made him alter his views. So he went out last night and he came home a sight, for they loaded him all up with booze. He's the light of my life and we've never had strife, but I think I will purchase a gun, and the 'light of my life' will get plugged by his wife if he comes home again with a bun!"

Shop at Home —First

YEARS ago people went into the market place "to shop." They went, not knowing what they would find, its price or its worth. Weary hours were spent in inspection, in bargaining and buying.

Today manufacturers are bringing the market place to your home. Every time a newspaper comes, a host of people are ringing your door-bell. Merchants and manufacturers are waiting on the doorstep to spread their goods at your feet for you to look at—to inspect at leisure and in comfort.

Don't let the opportunity that advertisements offer you slip by. No matter what you want, clothing, groceries, a fountain pen or a farm, you will find the "better" ones in the advertising columns.

The advertisements tell you where you can get what you want. They are a guarantee of worth that protects your purchase.

MCCRACKEN AND S. O. NO. 2 WIN IN CAGE GAMES

In what is declared to be the best basketball game played at the Junior high school gymnasium this year the McCracken quintet defeated the Standard Oil No. 2 team 29-27 last night. In the second game the Kearney Furrer team defeated the Standard Oil No. 2 team 18-13.

The McCracken team, which was the game of the night, were were no individual stars. Each man played on a par with the rest of the team.

It was a smashing fight from the start to finish. At half time the score stood 18-13 for the McCracken team, at the end of the third quarter the score stood tied 17-17. In the final canto the fight began.

In this quarter the McCracken team added six points and the Standard Oil team added two field goals.

The McCracken system of bucket shooting seemed to be that of feeding the ball to Pat Chatterton who brought them down. In the course of the evening Pat collected 19 points.

Good team work and clean play were featured on both sides. O'Brien, the Clithero forward played a snappy game while Gaddybury for the losers did most of the bucket shooting.

It was a game that the fans thought worth while and it has been the first time this season that the McCracken team has been defeated by a regularly organized league team.

In the second game the husky little Kearney boys put up a wonderful fight against the much heavier opponents, the Standard Oil No. 2 team. The little fellows lead throughout the game until the last five minutes to play when Hutton scored.

The line ups were:
McCracken: Huetzka, f. 6; O'Brien, f. 8; Chatterton, c. 12; Lee, g. 9; McLaughlin, g. 6; Gilliam, c. 2; points.
Standard Oil: Daley, f. 8; Kamb, f. 4; Gaddybury, c. 11; Conell, g. 5; Tamm, g. 6; Stewart, sub. 6; Standard Oil No. 2: Morrison, f. 6; J. Hutton, f. 8; Baldwin, c. 4; Proin, g. 6; Navarino, g. 6; Kearney Furrer: Bertoni, f. 2; Gorkins, f. 8; A. Hutton, c. 2; Madianni, g. 1; Mino, g. 2.

POLE VAULT RECORD IS SHATTERED

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—It took a native of Norway but 5 minutes to destroy a world record which Americans had been years in setting up. Charles Hoff competing for the first time in America and for the first time on an indoor track, pole vaulted to the magic height of 13 feet, 1 inch in the feature event of the Millrose games in Madison Square Garden tonight.

LOCAL CAGERS WIN FROM U. C. PHARMACY FIVE

The Richmond High school basketball team took an easy game from the U. C. Pharmacy school at San Francisco last night by the score of 41-20.

The local team showed a form that couldn't be beaten and the Druggists were unable to pierce their defense.

Bebe Gualdoni was the star man for the local school with 12 points.

Hill used a line up that had a wonderful effect, and every man took his share of points.

Guberts was high man for the Druggists with ten points.

At the end of the half the score stood 21-4 in favor of the local team and in the third quarter they scored 20 points to their opponents 16.

The game came rather unexpectedly. At 3:30 last night the San Francisco team called up Coach Hill and asked him to bring around his unlimited team. Immediately Hill leaped into his trusty Lizzie and went searching for his men.

Hill used the following line up: Violalaros, f. 6; Santalla, f. 4; O. Johnson, c. 8; Gualdoni, g. 12; Gray, g. 8; Subs: Dyer, 2; Barberi, 6; Hoskins, 4; Thompson, 0; H. Johnson, 0.

Card for Fights At Winters' Hall Tonight Complete

Benny Chera, clever lightweight of Oakland meets Eddie Sylvester of Los Angeles in the main event of the new Richmond Athletic club's boxing show at Winters' Hall, tonight. The main events are fit as the proverbial fiddle and meet over the eight round route, or less.

A regular fistie donnybrook with two game boys battling continually, punching hard and taking punches without wincing or running away—that is the pugilistic tidbit Matchmaker Harry E. Gels has arranged for tonight's semi-windup of the opening fight card. Benny Alger and Frankie are the performers.

Each is rated an aggressive, willing fighter. They fought a sensational draw at Santa Cruz recently, and each is out to prove that he is the better man.

Similarity of style some times makes poor fights—in the case of boxers. But in the case of instinctive fighters, like Bray and Alger, it makes the evening all the merrier for the spectators. Neither knows what it is to quit, and each one's record has victories or draws earned after the fighter was almost stopped, but by sheer gameness, rallied to even matters or beat the opponent.

Bray, who is handled by E. J. Kaplan, is an Oakland youth who is fast coming to the front in the welterweight ranks. He is not being rushed at all, but already has made a fine record in fights with George Russell, Young Carpenter, Gilbert Atwell and others.

Benny Alger is the kid brother of Billy Alger, the "Arizona Wildcat" who is one of the sensations in junior welterweight ranks. Benny is bigger than his brother Billy, and isn't as experienced a fighter, but he has all of Billy's gameness and aggressiveness to make him a crowd-pleasing battler. The Alger set a terrific clip, and are most dangerous when they get a hard wallop—a time when many fighters lose their force.

He has fought Johnny Green, Joe Morrissey, Jimmy Bartlett, Willie Maher, Bud Doyle and a host of other good boys since coming to California, and has a record of 16 wins and 2 losses in 18 Arizona fights.

When Bray and Alger hook up, look for a tough battle.

The rest of the card stands: Jimmy Valentino vs. Bobby Ertle, 128 lbs.; Carl Grazino vs. Cyclone Pets, colored, 150 lbs.; Mickey Brown vs. Pal Bayatto, 130 lbs.; Gene Ramos vs. Ivan Kid Morgan, 130 lbs.

Dr. J. B. Spaulding, well known Richmond physician will examine the fighters before the bouts. Frankie Nell, ex-bantam weight champion of the world will be time-keeper. Billie Burke, one of the highest class referees now officiating on the Pacific Coast will be third man in the ring tonight. The first bout will start at 8:30 P. M.

Trophy Offered for A Match Between Wills and Lenglen

(By Universal Service)

By ROBERT J. PREW
LONDON, Feb. 4.—The Duke of Westminster's intense interest in the rivalry between Helen Wills and Suzanne Lenglen found practical expression today when the Duke offered a gold cup for the winner of their first meeting.

The offer is made by the weekly publication, The Outlook, which the Duke of Westminster owns—a fact that is known to only a few people in England. The Duke telegraphed his instructions to the Outlook, declaring:

At the present moment the question of whether Suzanne Lenglen will ever meet Helen Wills to decide the world's tennis championship for women, seems to have captured the interest of the old and new worlds.

Miss Wills has come to Europe with the obvious object of meeting Miss Lenglen. For her part Suzanne is ready and willing to meet the aspirant who challenges her supremacy, and the newspapers of France and England seem to doubt the prospect of the match taking place.

The Duke adds that if the match cannot be arranged for the Riviera, the offer of the cup holds good for the Wimbledon tournament next summer.

Reports from the Riviera credit the Duke with heavily backing Suzanne to beat Helen.

Urge Washington Highway to Honor Country's Father

(By Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—"The proposition of a transcontinental highway to be known as the 'Washington Highway' is not only feasible, but is a necessary measure," declares Col. Daniel P. Sullivan, president of the American Parkway Federation, on his return from Washington, where he conferred with members of the U. S. Commission for the celebration in 1932 of George Washington's 200th birthday.

"We already have such highways as the Roosevelt, running from Portland, Maine, to Portland, Ore., the Lincoln, connecting Philadelphia with San Francisco, and the Lee, starting at Washington, D. C., and joining various roads in the South, finally terminating in San Diego, Cal.," said Col. Sullivan.

It seems to me that the old National Highway could be utilized by widening this thoroughfare and by joining it with Santa Fe trail at La Junta, Cal., which could in turn be improved and joined with the National Parkway-Park Highway at Gibson, New Mexico, with Los Angeles as the terminus. This general route with a southwesterly trend would be no longer than the Lincoln highway, both averaging 3,000 miles in length.

FOUR TRAFFIC LANES
"Our proposal contemplates four lanes for traffic—two for trucks and two for pleasure vehicles. Inasmuch as the National highway, so called, is built as far as Kansas City, the economy feature embodied in this proposal makes it attractive. The present width of this partly constructed highway is about 20 feet and widening it to accommodate necessary traffic should not require any engineering difficulty."

Col. Sullivan further stated that the proposed Washington Highway could be connected with the Bronx and New York City by utilizing the Bear Mountain bridge and the Bronx River Parkway and Grand Concourse as the terminus.

In this way, he says, the battles of the Revolutionary war at Newburgh, White Plains and the Bronx, would become points of national interest.

German Mission Is Starting for The South Pole

(By Universal Service)

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 4.—Since she began her cruise more than a year ago, for the fourth time the German seavette, "Meteor," comes to the port of Buenos Aires. Those who habitually pass by the docks are familiar with the gray, sh-houette of the "Meteor," which looks more like a pleasure yacht than like a war vessel, destined lately to conduct investigations of scientific nature related with submarine flora and fauna.

The mission on board the seavette began its work under the orders of Professor Meier, who died in this city, not long ago, after he fell ill during one of the expeditions. Since then the investigations are conducted under the direction of the commander of the vessel, Captain R. Spiess, who relates some interesting details of the last expedition.

The "Meteor" left the port of Buenos Aires September 18 last, bound for the Falkland Islands, where she arrived September 25th. From there she went to the Cape of Good Hope, and on October 28 left for Brazil. During the voyage the mission discovered a submarine mountain, 25 kilometers long, in a depth of 500 to 600 meters. That mountain is located about the 48th parallel and the 5th meridian, near the Cape of Good Hope.

The mountain has been named "The Meteor Bank" by the mission, and its discovery was made by means of an electromagnetic soundings, which transmitted sounds to the summit of the mountain, being perceived on board the "Meteor" by means of another receptive membrane, and with special calculations it was possible to determine its location and extension.

During the voyage, the mission made also meteorological studies. The oceanographic studies," says Captain Spiess, "have awakened much interest in the German scientific circles."

The first studies in oceanography which contributed to arouse the curiosity of the unknown were those that the Prince of Monaco made in the Mediterranean Sea, and which are serving as useful basis for the studies which have been conducted lately.

The expedition directed by Captain Spiess is formed by the following professors: Doctor Wust, of the University of Berlin; Dr. Boeckner, of the Berlin Institute; Dr. E. Phil, Professor of Climatology and Meteorology of the University of Hamburg; Dr. Hentschel, of the University of Hamburg; Dr. Reger, of the Lindenberg Observatory; Doctors Hans Meyer, M. Phil and D. Phil.

The "Meteor" is about to leave for Punta Arenas with the purpose of going as near as possible to the South Pole. The expedition will probably end in June or July of 1927.

As the scores indicates the contests were close. Each of the teams made a good showing and "Doc" Seawright is proud of his charges.

Junior High Cagers Lose Two to Berkeley

The fighting Junior high school weight teams came out at the small end of the score in two games, against Garfield yesterday at Berkeley, while the little 85 pounders came through with a win of 7-4.

The 100-pound team lost their game 8-7 and the 110's lost 8-6.
